

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The first draft of this guide was conceived of, researched, and written by Brandeis University student Rebecca Gedalius in Spring 2005. Much of the structure, flavor and content of this publication is hers. We gratefully recognize her contribution. MHLAC also thanks Melissa Stimell and the Legal Studies Program at Brandeis for matching Rebecca with MHLAC.

This guide draws upon previous guides for youth and families involved in the juvenile justice system, notably:

- “From a Parent’s Perspective,” by Linda (Smelstor) Pedersen and published by the Massachusetts organization, Citizens for Juvenile Justice (2000);
- “Kids and the Law: A User’s Guide to the Court System,” by Rebecca Pries and Carol Rosensweig (3rd ed. 2002);
- “Making Your Voice Heard: Family Advocacy Handbook,” by Gabriella Celeste and published by Juvenile Justice Project of Louisiana;
- The Parents’ How-to Guide to Children’s Mental Health Services in Massachusetts, by the Boston Bar Association and other organizations and published by the Boston Bar Association (2004).

MHLAC particularly would like to thank Joshua Dohan, Lael Chester, Barbara Kaban, Cecely Reardon and Robert Fleischner who commented extensively on drafts of this document. MHLAC extends a special thank you to Judge Stephen Limon, whose edits formed the basis for the third edition.

We also would like to acknowledge the extensive and excellent assistance of AmeriCorps members Judy Pisnanont, Lyndsey Frushour, Sandra Carter, Sarah Sallen, Claire Bolton and Ayan Mohamed, who came to MHLAC through AmeriCorps’ Massachusetts Legal Assistance for Self-Sufficiency Program, which is administered by South Coastal Counties Legal Services, Inc.
