

PRIVACY, PETS, AND POSSIBILITIES - MAKING INTEGRATED CARE WORK

Tuesday, November 15th, 2016, 9:00 AM – 5:00 PM

MCLE

10 Winter Place, Boston, MA, 02108

Integration of behavioral and physical health care is supposed to improve the quality of health care, but the sharing of mental health information with physical health providers can mean inferior medical care for people with psychiatric challenges. And integration of care won't improve outcomes if we remain limited to services that have produced lackluster results. We'll be talking about making fundamental changes in how we think about mental health care and the people who use it so that integrated care can work.

During the day, you will experience interactive demonstrations of treatment modalities and dynamic presentations by individuals incorporating new approaches to integrated care. Breakouts target the interests of lawyers (how to pursue successful privacy actions, employment discrimination cases, and more) and clinicians (practices that respect privacy, achieve better outcomes, and accommodate provider needs).

Participants will come away with tangible methods to improve integrated care and their professional and personal techniques for working with and supporting colleagues, clients, people with lived experience, and family members.

DIRECTIONS To: MCLE, 10 Winter Place, Boston MA

Public transportation is strongly recommended. MCLE is conveniently located down the street from the Park Street Station stop on the Red and Green Lines or the Downtown Crossing stop on the Orange Line of the MBTA. Commuter Rail lines from the west and south and buses also arrive into South Station, which is an easy walk to MCLE. For driving directions, consult GPS or the internet. There is no parking available at MCLE; however parking nearby is available (though expensive) at various garages either on or adjacent to Washington Street.

WORKING LUNCH: Hear how the practice of writing respectful clinical notes that are accessible to patients improves medical care.
